Go Into Politics.

"Keep out of politics."
"I never have anything to do with politics."

These are samples of quotations not infrequently heard in any community.

The man who is responsible for them should have a tag tied to his coat tail inscribed: "This is me, I never take any part in politics. I'm a sap-head who permits the other fellow to eat the sugar. I'm related to Benedict Arnold and don't care a damn what becomes of this blamed country."

A law should be passed that would have as a penalty "the work-house for ninety days for any man in any community who failed to vote if it were in his power to do so."

The time has arrived in America for those who have neglected the polls, to wake up and perform their civil duties. It is as binding upon a man to vote as it is to pray and even more so.

Moreover, this act should never be performed simply for the purpose of satisfying selfish ambitions. On the contrary, patriotic motives should prompt the action.

The seeker after office is not of the stamp of these, of course. Therefore he is not a good example for the youth to follow. But the young man as well as the old should make it a duty he owes to himself and the state to become a participant in all civil affairs. Every man should know the status of his community; what it owes and how it pays; who conducts its affairs and how; who are faithful to public trust and who are working for self. He will then be able to judge as to whom he desires to have serve him. He will then drive the party politician from his door as he would drive away black-snakes.

A cold taken at this time of the year is generally hard to get rid of but it will not be able to withstand Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar. That will cure all colds, coughs, croup, whooping cough, etc., by driving them out through the bowels. If you have a cold, try it, and if not cured get your money back. No opiates. ### Good of the Devil.

An editor died and slowly wended his way down where he supposed a warm reception awaited him. The devil met him and said: "For many years you have borne the blame for that bad spelling that the printer has got off in the paper. The paper has gone for a $1 a year, and alas! The printer has bedeviled thee for wages when thou hadst not a farthing to thy name. People hath taken thy paper without paying for it, and cursed thee for not getting out a better sheet. Thou hast been called a dead beat by railroad conductors when thou hast showed thy annual pass to their envious gaze. All these wrongs thou hast borne in silence. Thou shalt not enter here." And with tears of joy, the editor turned away when Satan muttered: "Heaven is his home, and besides if I let him in here he will be continually having trouble with his many delinquent subscribers, and thus create discord in my kingdom."—Ex.
